Waterworks and Sewerage Outlined and Discussed At Well Attended Meeting

Approximately two hundred highly interested Vulcan ratepayers were in attendance at a public meeting in the basement of the I.O.O.F. hall on Monday evening, February 25th, when Mr. E. G. Davis of Ripley, Davis and Associates, hte consultant engineers who made the preliminary survey here, explained fully the proposed waterworks and sewerage for the town of Vulcan.

Mr. Davis outlined the plan roughly as follows:

A waterworks and sewerage plan laid out for the complete town would cost approximately $185,000. A few blocks where there are at present no residences could be omitted at the start, bringing the cost to around $170,000.

Costs of such a project have increased from 30% to 34% since prior to the war. Prospects are for a continued rise in the cost of materials, but labor costs will remain the same. In giving the estimates, the engineers allowed a goodly margin for any unforseen expense, so that the figures given should be more than adequate.

Total annual costs, including upkeep, maintenance and debenture payments for waterworks will be $10,100, and for sewerage $4,600, or a total annual cost of $15,700. This figure covers obsolescense, depreciation and operating costs. The system will last from forty to sixty years, or far beyond the debenture period of thirty years.

Two problems are met with in Vulcan The first, that of water supply, which must be definitely ascertained before proceeding any further. The water varies, with some of it containing an objectionable amount of Glauber salts. While not injurious to health, it might cause discomfort to strangers. Indications are that an adequite supply of suitable water can be obtained at 120-foot level on the north side of the town. Two wells of 25 gallons per minute, or three of 18 gallons perminute capacity would be required. These would have to be pumped for a week before the tests would be adequate. While everything indicates a more than ample supply of good water, accurate and exacting tests must be completed and proven satisfactory before undertaking a project of this size. The wells would have to be drilled at an approximate cost of $1,000 or $1,200 each by the time the tests were completed.

The second problem is sandstone. This brings up the cost slightly. While the sandstone is now at the frost line, it will have to be dug into several inches (up to one foot) for the laying of the pipe.

While there are two levels in the town, it lends itself to a natural gravity layout for sewerage by cutting through a sandstone ridge that cuts through the centre of the town. This will give a simple, trouble-free system.

Disposal would be toward the south-east, going under the railroad and disposed of at the gully there. When it comes out of the disposal plant the water will be slightly discolored, but will have no offensive odor; 75% of the water pumped into the system will be used, so the amount for disposal will be small and will soak away in a very short distance.

The waterworks and sewerage here will prove self-liquidating. All except two towns having water systems in Alberta have a surplus revenue from these utilities, and in those two cases they expanded beyond their population.

Revenue is derived in three ways. In the case of waterworks it would be by a frontage tax of ten cents per foot per annum (compensated for by the increased value of the property); an assessment of 2½ mills, and by a charge of $4.00 per month per household. Considering the first year a six months' term a deficit of $3,400 could be expected. At the end of the second year, if the citizens co-operate, there should be a credit balance of $2,000. At the end of the third year, if there are 300 services, the town should be able to drop the mill rate and frontage tax.

Sewerage is figured separately. Using a gravity system, the cost of operating is very low. Almost the only expense will be the debenture payments. A $2,000 deficit can be expected the first year, and operate at a small profit after that. The capital cost would be met by a 2½ mill rate, which would be droped the third year, and a service charge of $9.00 per annum.

The entire system can be installed.

A lengthy question period followed, the numerous questions being of a nature that indicated an earnest desire for information on this all-important question.

Analysis of the water from various wells were read and explained by Mr. Davis. The question of the suitability of the water for irrigation was one that hed had overlooked, said Mr. Davis, but he promised to go into the matter thoroughly. The water here is very soft, and from the standpoint of health is excellent.

A 50,000 gallon storage tank will be erected no the golf course. The present system of underground storage tanks, with a capacity of 125000 gallons, will be replaced with a 100,000 gallon ground tank in the system. This will also enable the system to be put in without fire-hydrants, these to be added later

The town can raise the necessary funds on thirty-year debentures.

The question of a Federal grant of 20% on post-war reconstruction work was raised. An effort had been made to obtain this, but to date no progress has been made. The Council will pursue the question further. E. G. Hansell, M.P., agreed to assist in any way he could and took the opportunity of complimenting the Council on the progress they had made to date on this project.

To proceed further with the scheme, the town of Vulcan must drill and test wells to ascertain water supply. This involves a sufficiently large expenditure that it must be put into a money by-law or plebiscite, requiring a two-thirds majority vote of ratepayers.

It has been suggested that the whole question be made into one plebiscite with the Town Council asking for authority to proceed with the drilling and testing of wells and then, if an adequate supply of good water is ensured, to proceed with the installation of waterworks and sewerage in Vulcan. If this course of action should be adopted, another public meeting will be arranged prior to the plebiscite at which time the Council and engineers could give further information and answer any questions which may have arisen by that time.

Social Credit Legislation

Monetary Reform Forecast in Lt. Governor's Opening Speech in the Alberta Legislature

Summarizing the past year, and looking to the future, the Lieutenant-Governor, J. C. Bowen included in his reference to coming legislation a mention of Social Credit policies.

In his speech from the Throne at the opening of the Alberta legislature, he said: "In obedience to the mandate it has repeatedly received from the electorate, my government will continue to pursue vigorously its policy, and program of economic and monetary reform, in keeping with the prineiples and philosophy of Social Credit. To this end legislation designed to establish by law, certain fundamental rights and responsibility of citizenship, will be submitted for your consideration. This legislation will embody measures designed to ensure all citizens an opportunity to enjoy a full measure of democratic freedom, and to attain a reasonable standard of social and economic security. To ascertain the constitutional validity of such legislation, it is proposed to refer the same to the courts before it is proclaimed law."

Amongst legislation and projects to come up at the present session he spoke of the five year program of highway construction, with particular attention to restoration of badly worn provincial highways, and the joint federal-provincial construction of the Great Slave Lake highway to open up the north.

He spoke also of the legislation to increase the scope of the Alberta Power Commission for encouragement of rural electrification.

Housing will receive attention and general rehabilitation efforts will be pursued. Further plans are going forward to extend educational services to returned men.

Federal approval is being sought for establishment of tourist camps 100 mile intervals along the Alaskan highway. An American syndicate would also establish bus service between Dawson Creek and Alaska boundary.

After 15 years of research to develop sawfly-resistant wheat, it is anticipated that the new "Rescue" wheat will be developed within two years to permit general distribution.

PANSIES BLOOM HERE IN MID-FEBRUARY

Victoria has nothing on Vulcan. At least not when it comes to growing early flowers. Take for example the two lovely pansies which grace the Editor's desk at the Vulcan Advocate. These were picked from the garden on Tuesday afternoon, February 26th, by Mrs. O. B. Roe at her farm home east of Vulcan.

One of them is fully opened, measuring 2¼ inches across, while the second is just nicely opened.

Until very recently the garden had been blanketed by snow, but the balmy breezes of the past ten days melted the snow from a small mound in the garden and there on the south slope of this tiny mound sprang the plant and in record time produced two lovely blooms. Fearing they would be destroyed by frost that night, Mrs. Roe picked them on Tuesday. How they survived Sunday night's sudden changes in tmperature will have to be listed as one of Mother Nature's secrets, although the frosted outside edges of the petals show a narrow escape. Can spring be far away?

VULCAN SCHOOL SENIOR STUDENTS TO PRESENT A DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL EVENING, MARCH 6th

Rehearsals have been underway at the school for over a month now in preparation for this event. The intermediate students have a surprise dramatic offering well in hand, while the drama class of the High School has been preparing a skit and a one-act play.

The school orchestra and a senior girls' drill will complete the program.

OUR RURAL MAIL CARRIER AN APPRECIATION

Box-holders on Route 2 would like to express appreciation and thanks to our mail carrier, Owen Fleming, who has given us splendid service in good weather and bad. Even when road conditions left much to be desired and the weather anything but good, he remained always jovial and courteous and willing to accommodate those whom he served. Being on the far end of the route I know what it means to get the mail, especially in the winter. I recall one time during a bad spell of weather when, like many others, I didn't expect the mail on mail day. By chance I looked in the box two days later and found that it had arrived on schedule. Returning to the house I phoned the neighbors and informed them of this. Even those living close to the road had been unable to see the mail man when he passed owing to poor visibility caused by the storm and were as surprised as I that the mail had made it through. Just another instance of the splendid service given us, and I know I am voicing the opinion of many when I say, "Thanks, Owen, well done!"

CELEBRATE SCOUT-GUIDE WEEK

Boy Scout-Girl Guide week, February 17th to 23rd, was observed by the Brant-Ensign Troop and Company under the direction of its various leaders, Mr. Blair, of Ensign, Scoutmaster; Miss Herronton, of Brand, Cubmaster; Miss Thom, of Brant, Guide leader, and Mrs. Ball of Brant, Brownie leader.

Each Scout wore his uniform to school throughout the week and also raised and lowered the flag each day at Ensign during this week.

The special events of the week were the joint demonstration night at Brant February 21st to which all parents were invited, and also the Scout-Guide service at Ensign February 24th.

Thursday night at the joint demonstration, Scoutmaster Blair opened the meeting with a talk on Scout-Guide week and its observance of the birthday of Lord Baden-Powell, the founder of scouting. He also gave a short talk on Scouting and Guiding in general, in which he explained the fundamentals of both.

The first items on the program was the giant horseshoe formed first of Cubs, then Brownies, then Guides, and lastly Scouts. General inspection was then in order. As explained by Mr. Blair, every Scout's duty is to keep himself neat and clean. Clarence Collison was then invested into the Scout Troop, and Patricia McFadden was invested as a lieutenant along with Jean McDonald into the Guide Company. Jim McFadden, patrol leader of the Coyote Patrol, was then awarded the 2nd Class Badge and also the Honour Flag as being the patrol having won the most points in a three-month competition.

A joint game was then played by all, followed by a first aid demonstration by the Scouts. Next was a knotting game, in which the Scouts competed against the Guides. The Guides then gave an exhibition of combined signalling (Morse and flag) and first aid.

Another competition of knotting was then given by the Cubs and Brownies.

One of the highlights of the evening was the rope bridge built by the Scouts. It was about fifty feet long and when finished they had a young lad walk across it to demonstrate its capabilities.

The evening was brought to a close with an artificial campfire around which they all sang, after which coffee, cocoa and sandwiches were served to the parents by the Scouts and Guides.

The service on Sunday witnessed one of the largest crowds ever gathered at the Ensign hall, which was almost jammed to capacity. Despite the condition of the roads people came for miles to witness this service, which was entirely conducted by Scouts and Guides, with the exception of an address given by Mr. Betton, of High River, Scout Commissioner for the district.

Brant and Ensign owe a lot to these boys and girls, who are the future citizens of our district, and possibly other districts, and with this training in Scouting and Guiding they will go a long way.

E. Hill, led the dancing. At the conclusion of the lunch hour, Mr. Hill, on behalf of those gathered, presented the bride and groom of 30 years ago with a handsome table-lamp mounted on a crystal base, and with an end table containing a beautiful bouquet of carnations. During the presentation Mr. Hill mentioned that Mrs. Oldfield was one of the first school teachers in the district, having taught the opening year at Berrywater. Mr. Oldfield admitted that he was one of the first bachelor farmers of the district. Thanks were also extended to the honored couple for their fine community spirit and the many fine times that had been enjoyed at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Oldfield very suitably responded to the presentation and expressed their appreciation of the kindness of their friends.

J. LUNDY FINDLAY Editor

WHAT HAS BEEN LEARNED

GENERAL H. D. CRERAR has expressed the determination that some of the lessons learned during the war be put to constructive use. He was speaking specifically of the training for war and the experiences which he thought might be directed into beneficial channels in training for peace.

Speaking on this subject, he said: "We Canadians must now search for every bit of guidance that we can garner from these years of toil and tears, of cost and casualties."

He spoke first of attention to medical fitness, the strict examinations, the corrections of minor defects. He would like to see these examinations continued, not only in respect to physical condition but also for aptitudes and mental equipment. If as strict a check were maintained nationally in pre-adult years it would unquestionably result in a healthier and happier nation. The cost would be nothing in comparison with benefits.

Another point that he stressed was the development of a national consciousness, which is the more difficult because of the vast size and the "ribbon development" along the southern border. He found that the policy of movement of troops from one point to another across Canada wakened the young people to a realization of their country as nothing else could have done. Although this movement of troops was instituted primarily to relieve boredom and stimulate morale, it had results far beyond expectation in making young Canadians see this vast country as a whole. In conversation with hundreds of men in the services he found it inspiring to find the new knowledge gained and the growth in national appreciation.

Gen. Crerar says: "I urge that this form of national education be maintained. This might be a basic provision of any future scheme of military service with extensive movement east or west of all those who are taking this temporary training. It would acquaint young people of the west with the problems and conditions of the east and vice versa."

He spoke also of the educational activity in the services which will pay future dividends. He found great interest amongst all ranks in the periodic discussions on current affairs which were part of the regular syllabus. These discussions revealed definite opinions and a real zest in subjects of the greatest importance. The conclusion that he reached was that the average Canadian is intensely interested in social and political problems, and his conclusions are as a rule soundly based. He feels this form of self-education should be encouraged in civilian life in the way of forums and adult education. The habit of exchange of opinion developed under army educational training must not be allowed to languish upon discharge. These young men with their impressions of and political backgrounds, have much to contribute to their own communities and to the nation at large.

"I believe" concludes Gen. Crerar "that the Canadian soldier is a better man and a better citizen than when he entered the Candian army. Anything that can be done to build upon the foundation of what he has learned will be paramount importance to this country and a guide in training future generations."

Plastics Have Their Own Place

There is speculation on the extent to which prefabricated houses will affect the lumber industry and the building trades if encouragement is given in Canada. But according to an article in the Financial Post, the most important role for plastics is to do a job that other materials have been unable to do successfully, and to develop a sphere of their own which can stand competition.

This article maintains that progress in Canada will parallel that in United States, and there is great expansion of plants involved in some type of plastic manufacture. The outstanding qualities of plastic products are their light

We Pay For Good Roads— Let's Have Them!

If you drive or maintain a car or truck, either for business or pleasure, you need no instruction on the value of good roads. You have experience of the delays and losses and expensive repairs occasioned by poor roads. Add to these the millions of dollars of lost tourist business that must be charged to Alberta's poor roads every year, and it becomes more urgent than ever that SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE.

THE TIME FOR ACTION IS NOW! The money paid by motorists for licenses and gasoline taxes is sufficient to finance a comprehensive road building program — and the Alberta Government now has such a program before it, planned by the Department of Public Works. This plan should be put into effect without delay.

The Alberta Motor Association has never relaxed its pressure for the modern highway system this province needs. Add your voice to this demand by bringing it to the attention of your neighbours or any group or club to which you belong, and by pressing for action through your representative in the provincial legislature. If you are a car-owner you might also like to join the A.M.A. Besides its championship of the rights of motorists it offers a host of valuable services that far outweigh the modest fee of $10 a year. Full particulars on request from A.M.A. branches in Calgary, Edmonton, Lethbridge or Medicine Hat.—Advt.

Presbyterial Annual Meeting

Missionary From Korea Tells of Occupation of Russia at Mission Station. Educational Training of Church

The twenty-first annual meeting of the High River Presbyterial was held in Stavely on Tuesday, February 19, with the President, Mrs. F. J. McKeague, in the chair. The day was beautiful and as the roads were open there was a large attendance. Statistical reports had been passed at a previous executive meeting so that the annual meeting could stress other angles of work done.

Interesting highlights were presented by presidents of the various Auxiliaries and affiliated societies, and reports were given by the secretaries of all departments. These were very encouraging and all showed increase in interest and in contribution.

Miss Edna McLellan who was evacuated from Korea after twenty-eight years of service gave a most interesting address. She wore a Korean costume of brown brocade which was a farewell gift as she left Korea. Her work was in the northern part of the country where five mission stations have been established and there are about 25,000 Christians. This section is now taken over by the Russians who do not allow the Korean people much liberty. The hospital and mission school buildings still stand but are empty. The furniture and equipment have been taken away to Russia.

Miss McLellan traced the life of a young Korean girl in a non-Christian home where she is trained in household duties but received no education. Her marriage is arranged by the parents and she becomes a slave in the home of her husband's family until she becomes the mother of a son. Should she not have a son she is sent away and her husband takes another wife. In Christian homes there is a Christian marriage service and she is accepted into her husband's family on an equal basis.

The church is promoting educational training and a five year course is now available in Bible Institutes which have been established. Both young and older women are proud and pleased to have this opportunity and come eagerly to occupy the dormitories which have been provided for them. They learn to read and write, and at the end of the course they really know their Bibles. They are pathetically proud of their graduation diplomas.

The following officers were elected and later installed by Rev. F. G. Brisbin of Stavely:

Past President: Mrs. A. J. Thomson, Blackie; President: Mrs. F. J. McKeague, High River; 1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. J. L. Wright, Vulcan; 2nd Vice-Pres., Mrs. W. C. Gibbard, Okotoks; Rec. Secretary, Mrs. J. W. Bainbridge; High River Corr. Secretary, Mrs. G. Cameron, Cayley; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. J. M. Fawcett, Nanton; Temperance and Christian Citizenship: Mrs. M. Caspell, Cayley; Missionary Monthly and World Friends: Mrs. W.J. Perrott, Stavely; C.G.I.T. and Mission Circles: Mrs. Pearson, Okotoks.

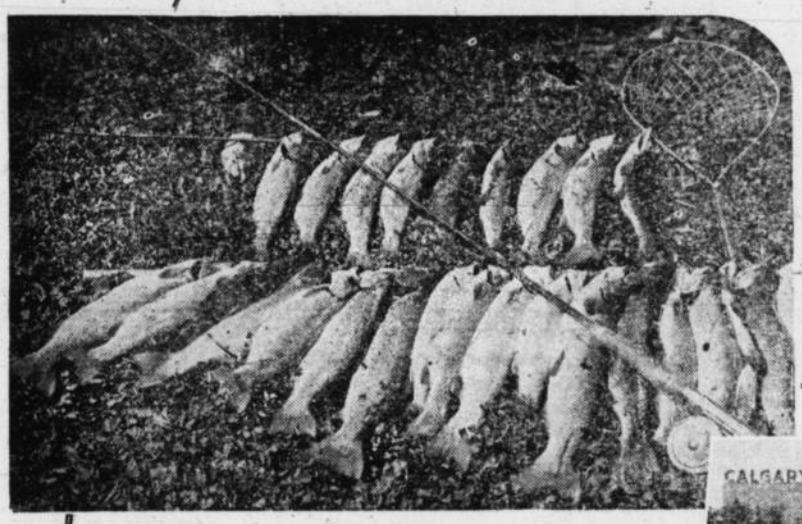

Mission Bands: Mrs. A. Farris, High River; Baby Bands: Mrs. Roy Fowler, Aldersyde; Literature Mrs. J. Haslam, Claresholm; Supplies: Mrs. W. Ferguson, Claresholm; Assoc. Members: Mrs. F. Hartwick, Tongue Creek; Community Friendship: Mrs. Gasser, Okotoks; Treasurer, Miss Cope, High River; Lantern Slides: Mrs. C. Hartell, High River; Press: Mrs. J. W. Bainbridge, High River.

Ladies of the Stavely Auxiliary served a bountiful and delicious dinner at noon, and later entertained at the tea hour.
